Battle of the Brains

Kathmandu College of Management, recently organized the “Battle of the Brains”, where teams from various colleges participated. The main agenda of the event was to solve real world problems through their creative approaches and problem-solving skills. The best team among the various participants was declared, “KCM battle of brain champions” - a true distinction among the potentials.

Ace Institute of management participated in the event - a three-day academic extravaganza. Alka Subedi, Archita Agrawal, Aryaa Nankhwa, Bigyan Gharti Chettri, Mega Shrestha and Suraz Mehta from BBA-BI 3rd semester were the participants, and they rightfully earned their title of “KCM battle of brain champions” in the event. Their planet name was Arda with the motto “let's turn back time”.

Day 1 of the event began with an immersive experience where each team had to turn their fictional planet into a reality. The participants had to engage in various activities including, gathering collectibles. The participants entered a new planet and learned to adapt to the given circumstances. Each team formulated a drama based on the scenarios given. From launching the rocket to landing on a new planet, teams acted on a given storyline. They had to envision the perfect world with teams all set to start a new life on the planet. They had to decide what type of world they desired and manage the planet that worked under their command.

The second day was based on survival. The activity had them search for the resources where the goods were limited in number. The Kepler Stock Exchange (KSE) is designed to test the abilities in forecasting, estimation, and analysis. Replicating the real-life movements of the stock market, KSE aims to improve the analytical skill, research abilities, handling losses, maintaining records, patience, and discipline

The final day had participants build a new city with the resources gathered during the second day. It was the last fight for the crown of The Battle of the Brains. Along with survival instincts and knowledge, the competition also tested the critical thinking ability of the participants. Participants from Ace proved their distinction among peers and brought home the title of “KCM battle of brain champions”.

Women's Day A celebration of new and equal opportunities

International Women's Day (March 8) is a global day celebrating Women's social, economic, cultural, and political achievements, marking a call to action for accelerating women's equality. Ace, being a progressive, co-educational institution that believes in fostering overall growth in students, celebrated women's day in the most vibrant manner.

To celebrate the women of Ace, a guest lecture was conducted by Ms. Srijana Mali Pradhan, founder of the Paridristi Law Firm. The session focused on "Legal Rights and Personal Empowerment". A lecture creating awareness on legal issues linking gender and gender-based violence, especially in women empowerment issues, it was enlightening. The informative session was held in the Ace Auditorium where the number of attendees was encouraging and uplifting. While a conventional guest lecture would not have topics up for discussion, Ms. Pradhan was able to invigorate every attendee to indulge, ask questions and share their views regarding empowerment and its necessity. The session was a blend of sharing and learning experiences. Besides, the institution was graced by the presence of Ms. Renuka Shrestha, a burn survivor who is a successful entrepreneur today. The students were touched by her moving story and enjoyed buying her scrunchies. Ace could successfully make the day very uplifting and inspiring for all the students.

For a fair and practicable way to decide the order of the presentation, proceeding through a lucky draw was furthermore a smart choice.

Participants were well-informed about the topic and the directions for the competition. Mr. Pratham Man Pradhan and Ms. Prapti Bidari, the emcees of the competition took the entire event to the next level. The panel of judges consisted of Mr. Hariom Sharma, Mr. Ramesh K. # Bandipur-Pokhara Trip

After a long period of relentless pandemic and a year-long semester through virtual classes, gatherings and meetings- a restoration of sanity and normalcy was finally brought after our recreational trip to Bandipur and Pokhara. The trip scheduled from 17th May to 20th May, turned out to be a very transformative one as we returned home filled with memories of fun-bonding experiences with our friends.

Our tour kicked off with an extremely exhausting expedition to the SiddhaBaba cave in Bandipur. As burnt-out as we were the trek was really fruitful and satisfying as the cool breeze inside the cave carried away all the fatigue from the journey and refreshed us. In addition, the tranquility of Pokhara rejuvenated us and graced us with countless irreplaceable memories. The highlights include cycling, boating, paragliding, bus tour to peace stupa and just roaming around the streets exploring the culture around the city.

The transportation and the places we stayed during the trip were extremely well organized and enjoyable. As much of a bonding experience as it was, it was also an escape from reality as we had to come back to meet the same old assignment deadlines and end term examination that was only a week away. The efforts made my Ace over the entire trip are very greatly appreciated.

Poonhill Trip

“My first trekking experience was amazingly enchanting and full of fun and memorable memories. Undoubtedly Poonhill is an easy trek, but it was very hard for me since I walk very less on daily basis. Thankfully I had some of the most amazing friends to help me there. Every journey has something new to teach us and I had many takeaways from this one. When we reached the top it felt so lively to stand there and witness the marvelous creation of nature. This trip will forever hold a very

Doma's Experience

Greetings everyone! Before diving into the tour experience let me first introduce myself as I will be your guide throughout this whole essay. I am Doma Sherpa currently studying in the 6th semester of BBA-BI and I feel very nostalgic while writing down this experience of mine. After I joined Ace, I used to hear from our seniors about the college taking students for a 5-7 days trek. I eagerly looked forward to it from the first semester. But due to covid, our plan was constantly postponed, but finally, after the completion of our 5th semester our plan to Poonhill was concrete and I along with my batch mates, and 3 faculty members started our trek. We were super lucky with the weather. It was warm through the morning and early afternoon, but by the time we reached our teahouse in the late afternoon/evening, the heavens opened up with a huge downpour that cleared the heat away.

Day 1, April 9th: Kathmandu – Nayapul – Tikhedhunga

Our journey from Kathmandu began at 7:00 early in the morning. Driving to the lake city of Pokhara from Kathmandu, the trip began by passing through terraced farms, and rural settlements in isolated areas. At 5:30 pm we reached Nayapul. From Nayapul, it was time to hike! After we passed the checkpoint at Birethanti the road gently climbed to Tikhé Dhunga. It took us approximately 1-2 hours to hike to the overnight lodge at Tikhé Dhunga. Thankfully, it was not a difficult trek that day but enough to wake up our hiking legs. I was exhausted and hungry and rushed down to the dining hall for dinner. After filling our empty stomachs, we all sat around the fire playing Antakshiri and had a wonderful time with our friends. The hotel where we stayed was made of wood and clay, so we would feel the tremors when someone passed by our room or used the stairs. After we all fell asleep my friend Jenisha started to scream at midnight out of nowhere saying “Earthquakeeee aayo earthquake aayo, runn!!”. It was a funny incident from that night that I will never forget.

Day 2 April 10th: Tikhedhunga – Ghorepani

The next morning, we woke up for an early tea and breakfast at the hotel and started to walk towards our next destination which was Ghorepani. We were told that the trek would be around eight hours long. After hearing the time it would take, I was stunned for a moment because I had no experience of walking that kind of length. Finally, the long trek began with a steep stone stairway – 3767 steps to be exact (FYI I didn't count the steps just did some research hehe ) up the ridgeline, eventually leading up to Ulleri village. Once you've completed this section of the path, the rest of the trail continues through a scenic area of rhododendron blossoms and old oak forests. As we left Ulleri, I realized the gift God had given us throughout the trek. The route blessed us with natural beauties and gifts of luscious waterfalls, beautifully flowing rivers and various types of plants. We took our time and slowly inched towards our destination as enjoyed whatever we saw on the way. We took plenty of photographs as we walked and finally we could see the beautiful snow-capped mountain peaks to the north. We had all started our trek together but as the time passed, we got separated from our friends and started to walk on our own.

Day 3 April 11: Poonhill- Ghorepani-Tadapani

We started with an early morning wake-up call and began our pre-dawn climb to Poon Hill (10,500 ft) in just about an hour. We saw the best sunrise and magnificent view of the Himalayas like Annapurna South, Bahari Shikhar, Hiuchuli, Nilgiri, Dhaulagiri ranges, Tukuche peak, Annapurna I, II, III, IV, Lamjung Himal, Mt. Manaslu ranges, Machhapuchhre (Fishtail) and others mountains. We grabbed a masala tea from the tea shop nearby and enjoyed the sublime view with our friends. After this unforgettable view, we came back to Ghorepani for breakfast. We then started to trek to Tadapani. This was my best route throughout the whole trek. I and my friend were chased by a buffalo. That experience was something different. The trail to Tadapani started steep until we crossed the Deurali Pass when the path became more forgiving. From the Deurali Pass, we got a second chance to take in the mountains we saw from Poon Hill. We stayed Overnight in Tadapani.

Day 4 April 12: Tadapani-Ghandruk

We woke up, had our breakfast, and got ready for the day. We continued our hike to Ghandruk through the Baisi Kharka (Buffalo pasture). It was a shorter trek, giving us plenty of time to explore Ghandruk, one of the largest Gurung villages. One of the highlights of the Gurung Culture Museum which gives an insight into the lives of the people. My friends and I tried on the Gurung dress and took many pictures and then we went to visit the Gurung village.

“My experience at has helped me to realize pivot practical knowledge and theoretical while still giving enough room to enjoy and have fun.”

Day 5 and Day 6: Ghandruk – Pokhara

On the 5th day, we headed to Pokhara. We all reached our hotel at around 2 pm and got fresh. It was new year eve, so we all went for an evening walk around the lakeside. The next day we woke up early and could see a beautiful view of mount Macchapuchre and Annapurna. We went to the Peace Pagoda temple which was situated very high. We then went to Mahendra cave. I was a bit frightened as I had never gone inside a cave before but when I went inside there was nothing to fear about. We could see idols of different gods inside the cave. Fortunately, there were lamps on the way and no bats. Later that evening we went for a boat ride, and then we also visited Pokhara's famous Disneyland.

My first trekking experience was amazingly enchanting and full of fun and memorable memories. This trek to Poonhill developed a sense of gratitude towards things and people around me. The people that I encountered during the trek and seeing the lifestyle of people in that area helped me realize I must be thankful for the things that I have in my life and not take anything for granted. This trek brought me this happiness that opened up a plethora of things that I need to work on one of them being my physical capabilities and strength. Undoubtedly Poonhill is an easy trek, but it was very hard for me since I walk very less on daily basis. Thankfully I had some of the most amazing friends to help me reach my destination. Every journey has something new to teach us and I had many takeaways from this one. When we reached the top I felt keenly alive to stand there and witness the marvelous creation of nature. This trip will forever hold a very special place in my heart.
